Percussion, Conversation, Degustation is a series of events featuring improvisational music and cross-artform performance led by Duré Dara, Speak Percussion and friends. Audiences are treated to a multi-sensory 'menu' of percussion, performance and discussion – an invitation to pause, listen, eat and reflect.

Secondary students are invited to join Speak and Duré for a free mini-series of workshops exploring improvised music and a performance at the Percussion, Conversation, Degustation event at Darebin Arts Centre.

For more than 50 years, Duré Dara has been making spontaneous music and performance. She is well known for her work with the late David Tolley, in the Brian Brown Quintet and as an improvisational musician, collaborating on countless music projects with some of the most admired Australian musicians.

Duré has achieved great success as a business woman, in a number of legendary Melbourne restaurants, in philanthropy, and through her work with the Victorian Women's Trust. She has consistently championed social inclusion and received an Order of Australia Medal for her services to women's groups.

In this improvisation workshop series, secondary students will hear from Duré about her advice for young artists and explore their creativity together in a supportive environment. Duré and Speak will lead the group through a number of games and guided improvisations, working together to create a small improvised performance to be shared at the Percussion, Conversation, Degustation event on Thursday 26 February.
